It was the middle of the night, set around the city of New York. People were hanging out in the streets like it's for the cool kids only club. There was a couple making love and affections in the alleyway.

Bebe (BF): "You know, since we've known each other for 2 years now. I was thinking about handing over this gift I've been holding for a while."

Love (GF): "Oh my, you did?! I wonder what's inside the box?"

Love (GF): "Oh cool! You got me a new watch, I love it!"

As they were showing affection to each other, a glowing meteor that was the size of a watermelon shot through the night skies and crashed at a nearby abandoned park.

Bebe (BF): "What the hell was that?!"

Love (GF): "I don't know, boyfriend. Should we investigate what it is so both of us can di- I mean find out what it is that crashed there?"

Bebe (BF): "Sure, whatever."

As the couples went inside the abandoned park, both of them followed where the meteor had crashed at. By the time they got there, they (Her Bebe and his Love) found a meteor at a nearby lake.

Bebe (BF): "What is that thing?"

Love (GF): "I don't know, but it looks slimy and sticky, like something stickier than a cobweb. Should we get a closer look?"
Bebe (BF): "Okay, you stay here while I get a closer look."

As he got closer to this sticky covered meteor, it split and cracked open revealing what's inside.

Love (GF): "What the fk is that?"

As he was about to answer her question, the worm-like parasite shot through and penetrated around his torso.

Bebe (BF): "AH!"

Love (GF): "OH SHIT!"

Her bebe fell on the ground shaking violently. She didn't know what to do in this situation. So she ran away to get some help.